PLAN CAMPAIGN FOR $100,000

New Science Building and Further Equipment New Project at College. New Plan to Follow Completion of Endowment Fund.

That the completion of the substantial new endowment fund of Gettysburg College is not to mark a cessation in efforts for better equipment was shown at the conclusion of the commencement exercises this morning when President Granville announced tentative plans for the collection of a new fund of $100,000 for the erection of a science hall and the further equipment of several departments.

Dr. Granville made formal public announcement this morning that not only had the fund of $230,000 been reached but that the mark had been over-reached by $25,200, bringing the total contributions to $255,200—over a quarter million dollars. "This means," says Dr. Granville, "that there has been accumulated for the college during this movement a total larger than has ever before been collected in the Lutheran church in America in a single financial campaign for any purpose whatever." In discussing the proposed plans for further work he said,

"Let no one suppose that because the task of raising over $250,000 has been successfully accomplished that we may now rest content on our oars. On the contrary, this is only the beginning; still greater things remain to be done."

"The primary object of this campaign was to enable us to pay our professors better salaries and to provide means for securing the additional instructors made necessary by the increase in students and the introduction of the new courses. In my opinion our most pressing need now is a combined science and engineering hall. Already our chemical laboratory is overcrowded to such an extent that the work is being seriously hampered. As all present indications point to an entering class of over one hundred next September, the congestion in this department will become still more trying and next year our physics laboratory accommodations will become inadequate. Moreover, additional rooms and equipment will be needed soon for the accommodation of our engineering courses."

"All of these needs can be provided for by a building and equipment costing $100,000, and the construction of such a building should begin not later than the fall of 1914. While the territory covered in the present campaign has been practically nationwide and thousands of individuals have been solicited for subscriptions, the field is still far from being exhausted. I feel confident that it will be possible to raise the additional money that is needed for this purpose. I hope to be able to submit tentative plans regarding this matter to the Board of Trustees for consideration at the winter meeting in December."

The dedication of the new memorial gateway at college was held on Tuesday afternoon by the Class of 1893. Rev. John C. Bowers presided and Rev. G. M. Diffenderfer told of the history of the movement to put up a permanent memorial. The address was by V. R. Saylor, of Somerset, and after the dedication Dr. Granville made the speech of acceptance. Dr. Edwin Warfield, president of Lafayette College, was present and responded to a request for a speech. The college band furnished the music for the dedication and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. William Ehrehart.

At three o'clock class day exercises were held on the campus. The program was considerably shorter this year than usual and concluded with the dedication of the class gift. The concrete walk from the Old Dormitory to Glatfelter Hall was lined with class and college streamers between which the Seniors walked. After the presentation the barriers were thrown aside, formally opening the walk for use. The lamp posts at Glatfelter Hall were unveiled and Dr. Granville made the speech of acceptance.

In the evening the President's reception occurred at the White House. The Alpha Tau Omega fraternity entertained at a dance in their house on North Washington street. Phi Gamma Delta had a banquet and Sigma Alpha Epsilon entertained their alumni at a smoker in their rooms. The Theta Phi and Druids also had their commencement reunions. The Sigma Chi fiftieth anniversary banquet was attended by fifty members at Hotel Gettysburg where the Phi Delta Theta and class of 1893 banquets were also held. The classes of 1907, 1908 and 1909 all held reunions at Hotel Gettysburg Tuesday (Continued on last page)

GUARD AGAINST SERIOUS FIRES

Town Council Accepts Suggestion of State Fire Marshal. Horses for Engine. Alarm System for the Town. Other Council Business.

Following an inspection of the equipment of the local fire department State Fire Marshal Baldwin appeared before the town council on Tuesday evening and suggested that several measures be taken to make the service more effective at the time of the battle anniversary celebration.

Mr. Baldwin is in correspondence with a number of manufacturers of fire fighting apparatus and is endeavoring to get several automobile engines and chemical wagons here for a week or ten days at that time. It is planned to have a paid man at the head of the department for that period and a corps of men ready to help immediately the Gettysburg volunteer firemen.

A man will be stationed in the engine house day and night to receive alarms. Every fire plug in the borough will be numbered and a card with the numbers and locations of the plugs distributed to every house. Anyone reporting a fire will then telephone the engine house after this fashion, "Fire in John Brown's house. Plug number three." The attendant at the engine house would tap the bell three times, repeating as often as necessary.

Horses will be provided for the engine during the celebration and are to be hired for a period from June 28 to July 9. The gas water heater will again be attached to the engine so that some minutes may be saved in getting up steam. The old hose was tested out Tuesday evening under a pressure of 210 and only one section burst. The pressure required for ordinary fire use is not over 125.

Mr. Keith reported that the light committee had had an interview with T. P. Turner and his attorney, J. L. Williams, relative to the Lighting Company being able to take care of the business during the fiftieth anniversary without affecting the quality of the street lights. Mr. Keith characterized the meeting as a "spirited and stormy session" and said that the gentlemen representing the Lighting Company resented very much council's even questioning the ability of the plant to care for the business. It was further reported by the committee that the lighting system at camp is to be carried on an independent system from the town lights and will not interfere with the lighting of the borough streets. The light committee was authorized to order the installation of seven new tungsten lights about town where most needed. A tungsten light was asked at the alley intersection in the rear of the Reformed parsonage on Carlisle street and the request was granted.

The light committee reported that no assurance could be secured of the prompt placing of these additional lights, that the representatives of the company thought 60 days would be a reasonable time in which to fulfill such orders and that the company would place no such lights if only for temporary use.

The question of the intersection at York and Stratton streets was next up for discussion and the following motion was passed: "That the intersection of York and Stratton streets be paved with tarvia, two feet beyond the building line on each street, and that at St. James and Wolf's corners concrete guard curbs be placed at a distance of 2 1/4 feet from the curb lines, to be covered with cast iron plates." These guard curbs will be used to direct the water course as at the corners of Centre Square.

John Alban reported further annoyance from steam at the Tiber and the chairman of the highway committee was instructed to attend to the repairing of the old line conveying the hot water from the power house.

$25 FOR FIRE CO.

Fire Department Receives Gift from College for Recent Assistance.

At a meeting of the college board of trustees on Tuesday it was decided to give the Gettysburg Fire Company $25 for their work at the time of the fire at Prep several weeks ago. The following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved that the Board of Trustees of Pennsylvania College hereby expresses its sincere thanks to the Gettysburg Fire Department for their most effective assistance in extinguishing the recent fire in Stevens Hall. That the building was saved is due to the promptness and energy of the department. The town of Gettysburg and the institutions there located are to be congratulated on the fire protection afforded by such an organization of efficient and public spirited citizens."

HAVE INVITED SPECIAL GUESTS

Tuesday Marked Sending out of Special Invitations to Guests of Honor at Time of the Battle Anniversary. Other News.

On Tuesday the battle anniversary commission began issuing invitations to the guests of honor for the big celebration. These included the governors of states and territories, with their adjutant generals, accompanied by one aide, the national administration officials, the Congressional delegation; distinguished officers who participated in the Civil War in the Union and Confederate armies; the ranking officers of the Grand Army of the Republic and United Confederate Veterans; members of the families and descendants of General George G. Meade and General Robert E. Lee and widows of generals who took a prominent part in the great battle.

President Wilson received his formal invitation several weeks ago but, up to the present time, no official announcement has been made regarding his intentions of coming or declining to attend.

Following the conference of railroad men at Gettysburg on Tuesday, President Fitzgerald, of the Western Maryland, said to a representative of The Times that all the roads were making every effort to get the crowds started here before July first. Their efforts in this direction are meeting with success and thousands of veterans will reach Gettysburg June 29 and 30, getting their places in camp before the final rush. While the railroads are devoting much attention to this feature of the traffic proposition, said Mr. Fitzgerald, their efforts will be in vain unless they are seconded by the veterans themselves, and the various state commissions are now lending their aid in order to get the old soldiers started in this direction in ample time.

An editorial in this morning's Philadelphia Inquirer regarding the celebration said:

"At present the only question which seems uncertain is that of transportation. The Secretary of War is doing his best to supplement the present normal transportation systems with a loop which will send trains in one direction over one road and in the other direction over another line. The railway managers declare this impracticable, but have established a block system by which they expect to handle trains rapidly and prevent congestion. It is going to be a test of managerial capacity, but the officials contend that they can do the work, in spite of the Secretary of War's doubts."

JOHN TOMS AGAIN ESCAPES ARREST

Man who Escaped from Adams County Jail Several Years ago is Tracked to the Mountains and Gets away.

John Toms, who escaped from the Gettysburg jail several years ago and has been at large ever since, narrowly escaped capture at an early hour Tuesday morning when a posse of officers tracked Sharon Gauger and Toms to the mountains near Foxville, Frederick County. Gauger was arrested on a charge of stealing a horse and buggy in Cumberland county. Toms raced away while his partner was being arrested.

In the party which made the arrest were Constable William Daywalt, of Waynesboro; Corporal Dennis and Privates Eiler and Stilwell, of the state constabulary and Deputy Sheriff Lidy, Thurmont, Frederick county, Md.

For some time it has been known that Toms and Gauger were in the mountains. State troopers have spent hours among the trees hunting them and several times were close upon them but could not effect their capture. A day or two ago they were located in the mountains about six and a-half miles from Deerfield.

At 11 o'clock Monday night, the posse left Waynesboro. They went across the mountains to Frederick county and at a point on the road between Deerfield and Thurmont where the Foxville road branches off and runs into the mountain, they were joined by Deputy Sheriff Lidy, of Frederick county, and started up the hill about this was at 2:45 o'clock.

For more than six miles they walked up into the mountain and at 5:30 located the camp of Toms and Gauger. It consisted of a tent in a thicket, in which the men lived, and a makeshift of a sheltering for the horse which they had with them.

The animal was tied to a tree and above it was stretched a piece of canvas that would not even keep the rain off the animal. When the horse detected the approach of the men, it snorted loudly, so loud as to awaken Toms and Gauger.

The officers were then fifty yards or more from the tent and they stopped as the horse gave the signal which aroused the men they were after.

Toms walked out of the tent and toward the position of the men. He came on until about thirty yards from the officers. Then he espied them and turned and raced away, back toward the tent. As he passed the tent Gauger came out of it and he joined in the foot race, following fifteen feet behind Toms.

They had not gone very far before Constable Daywalt was upon Gauger and had him in custody. He held him a part of a minute until the state troopers reached him and then started after Toms.

The brief stop, however, had been taken advantage of by Toms. He gained so much on Constable Daywalt that he could not speedily be overtaken and soon disappeared in the thickets and forest.

Shots were fired to stop him but he paid no attention to them.

There are a number of warrants out for Toms and Gauger. The charges include horse-stealing, highway robbery and burglary and, against Toms alone, jail-breaking, in Gettysburg.

THIEF RETURNS LOOT

Wherley Brown Found Money and Articles Stolen from His Home.

Wherley Brown, residing on the old Rahn farm, in Conecaw township, near McSherrystown, one morning recently discovered a roll of greenbacks lying under a large snowball bush, in the yard. On counting the currency, the roll was found to contain $53. Another glance revealed several silver coins under a peach tree nearby, while a watch and revolver were later discovered under a walnut tree. Mr. Brown was amazed at the discovery, but at the same time quite delighted, as the money and articles had been stolen from his house more than a week before, and no clue to the thief was discovered.

On the night of May 22nd, the home of Mr. Brown had been entered by a thief or thieves, who secured $60 in cash, a revolver, a watch, pair of gold cuff links, and some other jewelry. Entrance to the house had been gained by prying open a window. Burned matches were found on the floor of almost every room in the house. The money was taken from a bureau drawer in the bedroom of Mr. and Mrs. Brown, while they slept undisturbed, with a lighted lamp dimly burning. The revolver was also found in this room. The watch and other pieces of jewelry were taken from the room of the hired-man.

CHARLTON MUST RETURN TO ITALY

Supreme Court Orders Extradition of Young American.

TREATY NOT ABROGATED

Accused of Wife Murder, Porter Charlton Loses Long Fight For His Liberty.

Washington, June 11.—Porter Charlton, accused of the murder of his wife, whose body was found in Lake Como, Italy, just three years ago, was ordered surrendered to the Italian government for trial, by the supreme court.

After discussing the insanity plea the justice took up the main points in the case, whether, under the treaty of 1865, an American citizen could be extradited to Italy for a crime committed there, particularly since Italy would not extradite its subjects for crimes committed here. The refusal to surrender citizens for extradition, the justice said, was of modern origin. Some of the American treaties provided, he added, that citizens shall not be extradited, while the others are silent.

Justice Lurton began as soon as the court assembled. He said first that no error had been committed in excluding evidence of insanity at the habeas corpus proceedings in the lower court and no error in making the formal demand for Charlton.

"The conclusion is," said Justice Lurton, "that this government making exception in some treaties that it would not extradite its citizens, shows it was fully aware that there was no exception in favor of citizens in other treaties where the execution was not made, as the treaty with Italy."

Justice Lurton pointed out that it was conceded that crimes committed in Italy were not justiciable in the United States, so if extradition was not granted, the criminals would go unpunished. Crimes committed in the United States, he added, were justiciable in Italy. According to international law he held that the treaty, by reason of Italy's course, had not become void but merely voidable at the option of the American government. The executive department having waived its right to annul the treaty, the justice held nothing remained for the court to do but to enforce its decision.

The prisoner probably will be turned over to the Italian authorities after the observation of a few formalities.

The body of Mrs. Mary Scott Castle Charlton was found in a trunk near the wave-washed shore of Lake Como, Italy, June 19, 1910. It was in a horribly mutilated condition, showing plain marks of violence.

The Italian police took up the investigation of the case, with the result that a warrant was issued for the arrest of Porter Charlton, charging him with the murder of his wife. Frequent quarrels between the couple lent color to the charge of the police.

A search for Charlton revealed that he had left the scene of the crime shortly before the body of his wife had been found. He was traced to Naples and thence aboard the North German Lloyd liner Princess Irene, bound for America.

News of Charlton's whereabouts was cabled to the New York office, and on his arrival in Hoboken, N. J., June 22, 1910, he was arrested. Within an hour he confessed to the police that he was guilty of the murder.

Charlton was committed to the Hudson county jail and the long fight to keep the young man from being extradited began. Judge Paul Charlton, well known in Washington, brought all his influence and wealth to bear in an effort to save his son. The best counsel in the United States was retained and every move of the authorities was opposed with vigor.

Judge Charlton was a former United States Judge for Porto Rico and was a classmate at Yale of former President Taft.

THREATENED BREAK IN WILSON'S CABINET

Attorney General McReynolds on Verge of Resigning.

Washington, June 11.—The first sign of the expected friction in President Wilson's cabinet has made its appearance, and as a result Washington confidently awaits the news that a member of the president's official family is preparing to resign.

Attorney General James C. McReynolds is the man who, rumor says, is getting ready to quit the cabinet because of troubles with his chief.

The friction between the president and the attorney general dates back almost to the inauguration. The president considers that the work of the department of justice should be kept entirely secret. "Pitiless publicity," according to the operations of all the governmental branches except the departments of state and justice—the former because international politics is not thought to be fit matter for exploitation in the public prints; the latter because of the danger of warning those about to be prosecuted that the government's agents are on their trail.

The attorney general had other ideas which he did not hesitate to express to his chief, who as unhesitatingly disagreed. Nevertheless there were a number of "leaks" in the department of justice.

The details of the proposed prosecution of the tobacco trust and a number of other legal steps, which the government intended to take against the violators of the Sherman anti-trust law, found their way into the newspapers.

President Wilson objected. The attorney general replied that he was running his department and intimated that should the president find fault with the manner in which the trust prosecutions are being conducted that he would step down and let some one else handle the cases.

REFUSE TO IMPEACH BRUMM

After Long Debate Legislators Adopt Majority Report.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 11.—The house unanimously rejected the proposed impeachment of Judge Charles N. Brumm, of Schuylkill county.

Judge Brumm's "vindication" came after the motion of Representative Maurice Spencer, of Philadelphia, to substitute the minority report of the special committee which investigated the charges against the Schuylkill county jurist for the majority report, which was favorable to the judge.

It was not necessary to call the roll, the volume of "noes" being such as to settle the question quickly. After the substitute was knocked out, the house, shouting as one man, adopted the majority report, following which there was much clapping of hands and other evidences of satisfaction.

Judge Brumm's impeachment was at no time, judging from the appearances, seriously considered by the house and the discussion throughout was of a perfunctory character.

Comparative Digestibility of Food

Made with different Baking Powders

From a Series of Elaborate Chemical Tests:

An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of three different kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar, phosphate, and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.

The relative percentage of the food digested is shown as follows:

Bread made with
Royal Cream of Tartar Powder:
100 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with
phosphate powder:
68 1/4 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with alum powder:
67 3/4 Per Cent. Digested

These tests, which are absolutely reliable and unprejudiced, make plain a fact of great importance to everyone: Food raised with Royal, a cream of tartar Baking Powder, is shown to be entirely digestible, while the alum and phosphate powders are found to largely retard the digestion of the food made from them.

Undigested food is not only wasted food, but it is the source of very many bodily ailments.

ABOUT $100,000 FOR SUGAR LOBBY

Ex-Governor Carter Represents Hawaiian Interests.

WILL KEEP UP THE FIGHT

He Tells the Senate Probers of His Vain Efforts to See President Wilson.

Washington, June 11.—Former members of Congress, attorneys and others who have represented special interests in Washington, continued to testify before the special senate committee in search of the "lobby."

Former Governor Carter, of Hawaii, testified that he came to Washington "to give information about sugar;" that he had been sent by the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce and was serving without remuneration.

Harry Irwin, he said, had been sent by the Hilo Board of Trade. "Mr. Balou" had been sent by the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' association.

"I called at the White House and tried to make an arrangement to see the president. His secretary told me the president's mind was made up, that it would be useless to see him and denied me the right to see him. I then asked to see him as an individual, and I will see him next week, before I leave."

"In your activities, have you encountered anybody working in behalf of the consumer?" asked a member of the committee. "We consider that we represent the consumer as well as the producer."

He said that he had prepared a brief, talked with senators and tried to see the president. He maintained offices with a stenographer and a clerk, from which newspaper advertisements and "bulletins" were prepared and submitted to a committee in New York representing the Hawaiian sugar factories.

Carter testified that the domestic sugar producers working in Washington took in "everybody raising sugar under the American flag" and had spent "something less than $100,000" in their fight. A "Mr. Meade" handled the money.

"If we had paid out $800,000 we would consider it well spent if we could save the $2,000,000 invested," he said. "We propose to keep some one here to continue the fight as long as the right of free speech exists."

Carter testified that Sidney C. Balou, who had been frequently mentioned by senators as one of the "anti-free sugar men" who had called on them, was paid a salary of $10,000 a year to stay in Washington and look after Hawaiian commercial interests.

SEE MANY SUITS IN RATE DECISION

Lawyers Await Application of Ruling to Other Cases.

Washington, June 11.—A small army of lawyers assembled in the chamber of the supreme court in the expectation of hearing the application of the principles laid down by Justice Hughes in the Minnesota rate cases to the similar cases from Missouri, Arkansas, Kentucky, Oregon and West Virginia, but the court adjourned without announcing any additional rate decisions.

The adjournment was until next Monday, which will be the last decision day for this term. It is expected that the other decisions will be announced then.

Among the lawyers the opinion was general that, under the Minnesota decision, rate making, both in the states and by the federal government, had been reduced to a more accurate basis than ever before. They also were of the opinion that much litigation would ensue to determine whether state rates were confiscatory.

The decision, one of the most important in years delivered by the supreme court, sustained the right of the states to regulate intrastate rates on interstate railroads, even where this control indirectly affected interstate commerce.

All sorts of opinions prevail as to where the victory rests. Minnesota officials in St. Paul expressed their pleasure over the result and Attorney General McReynolds and members of the interstate commerce commission said they were fully satisfied.

U. S. POLO TEAM DEFEATS BRITONS

Wins First Game by Score of 5-1-2 Goals to 3.

SPEED U. PHIZES OPPONENTS

Big Four Outride and Outplay English Challengers in the First Cup Match.

New York, June 11.—Captain Harry Payne Whitney's big four of Meadowbrook surprised most of the crowd of 20,000 persons that saw the first game of the international polo match by getting a jump on the vaunted warriors sent over by England to recapture the cup, the Americans coming out victorious after a thrilling finish by 5 1/2 goals to 3.

When the defending quartette, composed of Lawrence Waterbury, N. 1; Monte Waterbury, No. 2; Harry Payne Whitney, No. 3, and Devereaux Milburn, back, were forced to enter the field at the eleventh hour and take the place of the team originally selected to play for the Westchester trophy none but their most ardent admirers thought that they had anything but an outside chance to withstand the vigorous hitting which the Englishmen had displayed in preliminary practice.

The revulsion of feeling when despair gave way to exultation because of the matchless work of the defenders in the opening period caused the spectators to leap wildly to their feet in the stands and hats were thrown wildly in the air when Devereaux Milburn whipped the ball through the posts and sent it sailing over the chainer, while England's side of the scoreboard remained a mere blank.

Although the game thickened a little end the challengers never recovered from the first swift onslaught of the Meadowbrook wonders. They seemed taken by surprise, the more so, as excepting a few instances, at the pick of the ponies collected by the Duke of Westminster with the idea of carrying the coveted trophy back to England not only failed to show their heels to the veteran thoroughbreds on which the big four were mounted, but actually lagged in spite of fierce whipping and hard riding by the determined cavalymen.

In handling their mounts the Americans proved even more adept than the four officers of King George, who came to this country with the reputation of being great horsemen, and which they upheld in a long series of stiff practice matches on various American polo fields.

The home ponies twisted and turned with even more facility than those ridden by the English officers, and at the beginning of the play the invaders had few chances to hit the ball, and when they did, almost invariably missed. It looked as though in this opening sortie the visitors were taken by surprise, and an overwhelming victory for America was the prospect before the Englishmen developed surprising reserve force and, aided by the casualty which took Monte Waterbury out of the game with a broken finger, finished so strongly as to induce fears that eventually they may return with the cup for which they had traveled, some from England and some from distant India.

AVIATOR FLIES FASTER THAN WIND

Frenchman Makes 2 Miles a Minute For 150 Miles.

Berlin, June 11.—Marcel Brinden-jone des Moulins, the French airman, made a remarkable flight from Villacoublay, near Paris, to the Johannisthal aerodrome, doing the distance of 674 miles in 7 hours and 4 minutes, or approximately a mile in 37½ seconds.

He started from Villacoublay in the competition for the semi-annual Pommery cup, and arrived at Johannisthal, making only one landing.

He had selected about the most unfavorable day of the season for his flight. He landed at Wanne, in a gusty gale blowing at the rate of fifty-six miles an hour, while a fog lay on the land. At Johannisthal it was so stormy that none of the local flying men ventured an ascent.

The Frenchman, who pilots a bi-plane with a motor of only eighty horsepower, intended to continue his flight to Warsaw and St. Petersburg, 1699 miles from Paris, but was almost forced to abandon his purpose owing to the unfavorable weather.

A short time afterward, however, the Frenchman made a start for Warsaw. He left the aerodrome at a terrific speed, flying with the gale.

The distance from the aerodrome at Johannisthal, Berlin, to Posen, is fully 150 miles in an air line. The aviator traveled most of the distance at a speed of two miles a minute.

The elder members of the family were away from home and found the lifeless body upon their return home Monday.
